WE HONOR THE MYRRHBEARING WOMEN

Story from the Gospel (Bible) reading of Saint Mark 15:43 to 16:8:

After Jesus' death on the Cross, Joseph of Arimathea wrapped the body of Jesus in fine linen cloth and provided a tomb in which Jesus was buried. Joseph had intended that the tomb would be for himself, but he loved Jesus and wanted to do the right thing.

In the early morning after the Sabbath day some of the women went to anoint Jesus' body with oil and myrrh, a sweet smelling spice. That was a burial custom of the people at that time and place.

Along the way they wondered how they would be able to roll away the heavy stone which covered the opening to the tomb.

When they got there, they saw that the stone had already been moved away. At first they were worried that someone might have moved the body of Jesus. But when they went into the tomb, they were amazed when they saw an Angel sitting there.

The Angel pointed to the linen cloths in which Christ's body had been wrapped, showing that they were empty.

The Angel told them not to worry and that He was not there -- Christ had Risen from the dead!

It was a special blessing from God that these women were the first to discover the empty tomb and to know that Christ had Risen.

We remember the Myrrhbearing Women on the third Sunday of Pascha (the second Sunday after Pascha.)

What we learn from the story:

For their love and faith, the Myrrhbearing Women are commemorated as saints. After Jesus was crucified, it was dangerous for anyone to admit that they knew Him, because other persons who were crucified were criminals. And the bodies of criminals were not honored with a funeral but instead were thrown into a pit.

When Jesus was on the Cross, the only disciple who was there was John. The other men were afraid that they might be arrested, so they went away. But the women followers stayed at the Cross.

Although the followers of Jesus loved Him, no one understood His words when He had talked about the Resurrection. Everything else Jesus had foretold about Himself had come true, including His death on the Cross. But no one yet understood how He would arise from the dead.

In the Orthodox Church, the Myrrhbearing Women are called "Apostles to the Apostles" because they were the first witnesses to the Resurrection. Jesus could have first revealed His Resurrection to anyone, but He chose the group of faithful women.

The story of the Myrrhbearing Women teaches us that faith in the Resurrection is a gift we receive from Christ Himself. He reveals Himself to each of us as our Resurrected Lord.

The lives of the Myrrhbearing Women, as well as the lives of all the apostles and saints throughout the centuries, and our lives too, are blessed by our belief in His victory over sin and death. Christ promised us that everyone who believes in Him and the Resurrection will have Eternal Life.
